

Escaping Poverty Traps
Connecting the Chronically Poor to Economic Growth

Thomas Jayne is Professor, International Development, in the Department of Agricultural Economics and a member of the Core Faculty of the African Studies Center at Michigan State University. He has recently returned to MSU after spending the past year at the Food and Agricultural Organization of the United Nations, Rome, working on agricultural marketing and small farm productivity issues in coordination with African regional agricultural policy networks and the Rockefeller Foundation. Jayne sits on the editorial boards of two development journals, received a 2004 top paper award by the International Association of Agricultural Economists, and his work has been recognized at the 1996 World Food Summit in Rome, the Secretariat of Global Agricultural Science Policy for the Twenty-First Century, and the 1999 World Food Prize Conference.
